Preparatory note

In line with the Terms of Reference for the Coordination Group on Global Policy Dialogue (CG GPD) and the information previously shared with the Group, the 4th meeting of the CG GPD will focus on Lifelong Learning (LLL).

LLL has been a recurrent topic in European policy over the last two decades. It is referred to in all the Communiqués signed by Ministers responsible for higher education in the European Higher Education Area (EHEA), starting with the 1998 Paris Declaration and the 1999 Bologna Declaration. Another recurring term in the Communiqués is employability, for which growing importance is placed on skills and the capacity to adapt to evolving societies. In the Rome and Tirana Communiqués, LLL has been connected to the emerging topic of micro-credentials.

LLL, flexible pathways, and micro-credentials are highly significant in a rapidly evolving world where societies and individuals must adapt, reskill, upskill, and learn throughout their lives. They are also connected to the broader theme of holistic human and societal development, as well as to the growing focus on a student-centred approach and inclusive, equitable education systems.

The work done within the Bologna Process has contributed to shifting the concept of qualifications, as codified in the second-generation recognition conventions, toward learning outcomes. In the Global Convention on Higher Education, the definition of qualification includes the validation of prior learning¹, while LLL is defined as “a process which refers to all learning activities, whether formal, non-formal, or informal (...)”.

¹ any degree, diploma, certificate, or award issued by a competent authority and attesting the successful completion of a higher-education programme or the validation of prior learning, where applicable.

One element that could ensure the comparability and portability of skills defined in terms of learning outcomes – whether acquired through formal, non-formal, or informal learning – is the Qualifications Framework.

During the 4th meeting of the CG on GPD, the focus will be on LLL from a global perspective, looking into the topics of:

- Skills and enhancement of human development.
- Flexible learning pathways, micro-credentials and recognition of prior learning.
- Qualifications Frameworks and credit transfer systems.

These topics will be addressed from the perspectives of Intergovernmental Cooperation areas in Higher Education, namely, the European Higher Education Area, the Central Asia Higher Education Area, the Common Space in Southeast Asian Higher Education, Espacio Latinoamericano y Caribeño de Educación Superior, and the East Africa Higher Education Area.

The main aim of the meeting is to identify the key elements to prioritise for improving dialogue and cooperation in lifelong learning at a global level.

- The first day will have two parts: the first part will be dedicated to the internal CG on GPD meeting, and the second part will be open to external partners and will feature presentations and a peer-learning activity (PLA) on LLL from a global perspective.
- The second day will be devoted to sharing the latest developments in the field, including participation from international, European, and regional organisations, as well as representatives from EHEA and non-EHEA countries and institutions.

Input from the meeting and PLA will inform the Global Policy Statement, which will be adopted at the Global Policy Forum in 2027.
